Protect Your Rights:
for youth who are pregnant and parenting

- Your school must allow you to continue participating in classes.
- Your school must allow you to continue participating in extracurricular activities.
- Your school must provide you with reasonable adjustments necessary because of your pregnancy.
- Your school must excuse at least 10 days of absences after the birth of your child.
- Your school must allow you to choose whether or not you want to participate in special instructional programs or classes.
- Your school must allow you to return to the same academic and extracurricular status as before your medical leave began, and give you the opportunity to make up any work missed during your leave.
- Your school must protect you from harassment based on sex, including harassment because of pregnancy or related conditions.
- Your school must provide you with reasonable adjustments necessary because of your pregnancy.
- One-on-one tutoring is a big help.
- Actually, I can still attend classes.
- After she’s born, I have a right to take time off to care for her.
- I can stay on the team. It’s my right.
- We have the right to be protected from bullying!
- I’ll use the elevator if I need to.
- I’ll decide what program is right for me.
- Yes, I’m going in the musical!
- I have the right to use the restroom.
- If I need a bigger desk, the school must provide it.
- We have the right to make up the work we missed.

This publication was supported by Award No. 1SP1AH000065-01-00 from the Office of Population Affairs (OPA), Maryland Department of Health, and Baltimore City Health Department. Its contents are solely the responsibility of the authors and do not necessarily represent the official views of OPA, HRSA, MDH, or BCHD.